The 5.1 audio issue is true. Too bad, but still worth the purchase. The stereo sound is great, the video is full HD and with a proper TV and upscaling its top notch. If you're an Eagles fan, you would buy this. No one lives forever.... Best to hold on to what you have. They still sound great. Vince Gill is a nice addition to the band. Deacon Frey is a spitting image of the young Glenn, shades on the head and all. He even sounds a bit like Glenn. (Remides me of Dhani Harrison's simmlarity to George.) No nitpicking, just enjoy 2 hours of the Eagles while you still can. Father time stops for nobody.

Very Disappointed with The Eagles / Live From The Forum MMXVIII Blue-ray disc
For a Blue-ray disc I expected better Video and Audio or at least comparable quality to the previous releases Eagles hell freezes over, and Eagles Farewell live from Melbourne. Both of the earlier releases actually have dts audio. The new blue-ray claims to have dts , but the sound is terrible, actually there is no sound out of the centre channel at all. Who would have thought? Anyway, hopefully this issue gets resolved.

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Hi Paul

Is this issue with the audio something you have heard from the record company about or could take up with them? The blu ray is supposed to be 5.1 but for all practical purposes (with no centre channel and really nothing to speak of in the rear speakers) it is really only stereo. This cannot have been intended and must be an error.

Some lame Eagles cover band. Many of the songs are not even Eagles songs plus they have an army onstage, 10 musicians, for what? They do The James Gang hit Funk 49 and totally water it down. They limp their way through Hotel California. They should have never done this tour or at least don't call it The Eagles. I'm sure they charged a ton for tix. I saw them one time on The Hotel California Tour which was great although I would have like to have seen them earlier. This is not The Eagles.

I have just purchased the Blu ray version of the Eagles Forum concertconcert.

There is no audio through the centre channel, The rear speakers audio is really not much more than ambient.

I dont believe it is a problem with my set up as I dont have the issue with other blu rays but would be interested to know if anyone elase has struck the same issue.

Kees

I have no audio signal in centre speaker. Surround speakers back left and right no instruments as well, just audience. Something went wrong.

Alan Deuel

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Yes! I just received my Blu-ray today and just commented on Amazon the exact same sentiments as yours. The audio production sucks. No center and surround is too much of not music. Everything sounds muffled. It's not your system. Try Hell Freezes Over DVD, or Billy Joel Live at Shea stadium Blu-ray. That's good center channel. Hell Freezes Over at 26 years old is such a better mix in DTS.

If this was filmed with 4K cameras, where is the 4K Blu-Ray release?
Crazy if they don't make one available for sale.
I've already pre-ordered the INXS Concert on 4k Blu-Ray.

If you don't like it, don't watch it. I don't care and I'm sure the Eagles don't either. Jeez what a bunch of whiners. I thought it was great. And I've been a fan most of my life too.

Are you sure they didnt filmed even 1 concert from that really long tour? They played dates all the way through 2015. I dont think they were that dumb in not click "record" in the video cameras that happen to be in every gig they played from that tour.

Cool release. I like a lot Vince Gill, and Eagles of course... It's always interesting when stars come out with other bands and show their skills for other's music. And Gill is a amazing guitarrist and superb singer... I searched for bootlegs and almost nothing appeared so this is a desired release to me.

As if it wasn't bad enough that the Eagles went Felderless (and I'm not even going on the Leadonless), now they are going Freyless and releasing a show officiallt nonetheless.

Have you read his autobiography?did everything for joe Walsh when he had addiction problems,picked him up took him to aa,,ect,,when it came time to tour again,walsh thru him under a bus,frey and Henley are (where) not nice people,the guitar intro to hotel California, was Felder, replaced him with a low paid session musician,amen,and as for DVDs hell freezes over for me any day!

enjoyed because Don Felder's guitar riffs throughout the various albums were an integral part of the listening pleasure.

I will not be buying it because it will be quite like listening to the Jimi Hendrix Experience without Jimi Hendrix.

Boy, Amazon US is really taking advantage of the increase in s&h costs from overseas. I've ordered my fair share of new/pre releases from Amazon UK and Germany recently where even with the $15-$25 shipping it came to less than the US price with free shipping.

Anyway, thought I'd mention that Rhino is offering a "super deluxe" edition that includes the 4 LPs, 2 CDs and Blu-Ray in a slip case box with 16-page booklet.

I share your pain Adrian. I think the “logic” is that in a years time it will come out in 4k and a lot of us will buy it all over again.

I was at one of the 3 three shows filmed in Melbourne for the Farewell DVD. The band was staying at our Hotel. Managed to get a signature from Timothy B. Schmit. He was in a bit of a hurry because he was “late for work”. I wonder if that is how they see it?

Dave

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

I always think it is funny when they assign track numbers to intros, band talking, etc – Would REALLY like to see more classic shows, like the whole Largo show that was partially used on the ‘History’ set or an entire show from LA ’76 – obviously recorded, since parts were used for Hotel California reissue and on the first live album. A ‘History’ Tour show would be really nice as well....

But that's actually quite a good idea, because you can skip all the chatter if you want and go straight to the song.

DAVEY

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Excellent point, Paul. Neil Young did the same for his 'Sugar Mountain – Live At Canterbury House' release. It all depends on how the artist wants their work presented.

CJ Feeney

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Wot Paul said.

I have playlisted the recent Elbow at the Ritz CD as songs only, as the spoken intro's are interesting occasionally, but you don't want them popping up on random play!

The format that really annoys me is when they put the intro to a song at the end of the previous CD track.

Kauwgompie

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Great for die hard Eagles fans but if you are not, this is a bit of a yawn. How many live Eagles releases can you have? I certainly have enough w Hell Freezes Over and Eagles Live.

Brad B

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Vince Gill and Steuart Smith's bodies of work stand on their own and they are worthy of all praise anyone chooses to advocate. However, the tour which opened with a song by Henley and Frey, then with Leadon for a song, Schmit joining for "Peaceful Easy Feeling", then Mr. Walsh emerging for an informal and bluesy "Witchy Woman" is what the fans deserve. Instead, it's the Ersatzagles.

Filmed with fourteen 4k cameras but released in 1080? Where is the financial logic in that? Ordered it but I wish it was a 4k bluray. It's also going to be tough to beat their Farewell Tour Melbourne release, for me the best live concert film ever. Absolutely at the top of their game on that.

Mark

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

I'm not sure what the big deal is; 16mm film has been 8k for 97 years!

Chris Squires

🕒 2 YEARS AGO

Unfortunately 16mm film is nowhere near 8K, I wish it were. Although it's all "conversions", 16mm is slightly south of 4k if we are talking "corresponding to video resolution".

It's what I do for a living and I get asked regularly to turn small format films into overly large video resolutions with each size of small format film, N8, S8, 9.5, 16 and s16 bearing in mind that an 8mm image is only 5.5mm across and standard 16mm only 11mm across (super 16 is 12.5mm.) This is, sadly, nowhere near large enough to sustain a genuine 8k image, you can do it but it won't necessarily look any better than a decent 4K transfer. In the same way you can blow VHS at 240 lines up to 4K if you wish but I wouldn't recommend it as it is roughly 1/5th of a megapixel in PAL.

As a rule of thumb standard 8mm film will just about go into HD, Super 8mm will just about go into 2K, 16mm will just about turn into 4k. But each of those is slightly pushing the boundaries. s16mm will comfortably make 4K, but not much further.

4K recording downsampled to 2040 for editing, then burnt to 1080 then watched on a 625 line TV... in 4:3 !

I agree. The "History" show was a very cool way to present a career spanning collection of music. I'll pass on this, but if they ever put out History, especially from the Forum, where I saw the show, I'm all in! By the way, the coolest career retrospective show I ever saw was RUSH 40. They played their hit songs in reverse order, from newest to oldest and changed the stage design to reflect the time period, ending in a high school gymnasium.
